Habits of the Heart Quotes Showing 1-9 of 9. "What people need to accept is that it is there responsibility to communicate what they need and what they feel, and to realize that they cannot expect someone else magically to make them happy. People want to be made happy, instead of making themselves happy".

Habits of the Heart Summary | SuperSummary

The fact that Habits of the Heart fails to provide much in the way of serious examination of individualism and its alternatives does not of course imply that individualism ought not to be a genuine concern. But one is led to wonder whether this whole formulation of the problem—one common, incidentally, not just to Bellah but to many conservative social theorists concerned with the individualist erosion of our "moral capital"—may not be somewhat misleading.
